BUSINESS TECHNOLOGY SOLUTION CHALLENGES

Because the different systems and technologies deployed over time has created complexity and increased labor costs, it's very difficult to deploy business technology projects quickly enough to proactively address or take advantage of changing business needs or market conditions. As a result, product, marketing and technical leaders require development partners that are sensitive and qualified to effectively and cost efficiently manage risk while ensuring the quality of the engagement experience and final deliverables.

Most companies have financial and resource constraints, or may not have the skilled resources needed to conceive, build, deploy and maintain their business technology solutions. To meet customer expectations, many companies frequently outsource projects to ensure delivery of key strategic business initiatives or support key IT functions If you're faced with Illustrating how your current or proposed business technology solution(s) will increase sales and revenue, improve business processes, or create cost efficiencies and enable competitive advantages, CANVIZ can help.

A MICROSOFT SILVER COLLABORATION AND CONTENT PARTNER

CANVIZ has been a trusted Microsoft partner since 2008. As a Silver Collaboration and Content partner, we are part of special advisory panels and developer kitchens where we provide feedback to shape MS products and platforms. We work with MS product teams in the alpha stages before the public even knows they exist and before public previews are available. That means we have expertise with it before anyone.

In addition, we make the training content that MS distributes to the world on MSDN, TechNet, Channel 9, the Office Developer site, and the Microsoft Virtual Academy. We're also fortunate to have Todd Baginski leading our product teams. Todd is a 10 time Microsoft SharePoint MVP, frequent conference speaker and blogger. He is considered a SharePoint platform expert in the industry.
